

Week 2 of Lib/Tech's June Bitmoji Challenge

Check out our video this week to see who already took the Challenge!

Create Your Own Avatar

Last week we challenged you to take our Bitmojis on an adventure with you! This week we want you to create your own digital avatar! Here are some sites to check out where you can create your own cartoon version of YOU! You do not need to save your avatar, this is just to learn how to make one!

Digital Avatar Creators

- Make A Face-great for younger kids
- Mini-Mizer-create a Lego-looking version of you (Requires Flash)
- Create Your Avatar-requires parent email to save final avatar
- Made With Code Avatar Project-more advanced avatar creator for kids who like to code
- Picasso Head-for the artists out there (Requires Flash)
- Dopple Me- create a cartoon like version of you (requires parent email to save-if you want to!)

You can still take our Bitmoji Challenge and email your pictures to Ms. Silag or Mrs. Seymour

Extra Library Challenge:

Take a picture of me with your favorite book, take the Read to Me Challenge and read to my bitmoji! Don't forget to take a picture!

Extra Technology Challenge:

Build me something like a plane, boat, roller coaster or house with blocks, recycled materials or anything! Be creative! Then take a picture of me in your creation!

Grade 4

This week, we are going to wrap up our Landmark research project by CITING OUR SOURCES.

For a quick refresher on what CITING SOURCES means and why it's so important to cite sources, check out this VIDEO.

Next, please take the URL for ONE of the sources you used for your research project and, following Mrs. Seymour's instructions in this VIDEO, please create a citation using Easy Bib and post it on the last slide of your Landmarks research project located in Mrs. Seymour's Gr 4 Technology Google Classroom.

Grade 5

This week, we are going to wrap up our Abolitionists research project by CITING OUR SOURCES.

For a quick refresher on what CITING SOURCES means and why it's so important to cite sources, check out this VIDEO.

Next, please take the URL for each of the sources you used for your research project and, following Mrs. Seymour's instructions in this VIDEO, please create a Works Cited Page for your Abolitionist project and post it in your Gr 5 Library Google Classroom.
