Parents:

Some of your children may have misplaced their Burnham Library card or maybe they never had one! In order to access the books available in digital format in the whole MVLC catalog, which is quite vast, a username and password is necessary. Your students could certainly use your library card, but if you'd prefer they have one of their own, Deb French is inviting anyone interested to reach out to her at Dfrench@essexpl.org to get a new one. I highly recommend using the catalog as a way to add to other digital book offerings like Epic! and Reading AtoZ.

Kindergarten & First Grade:

Since you have been studying Jazz in music class, I suggest you check out this read aloud on YouTube. Trombone Shorty is a biography about a jazz musician. While we have this book in our library at school, you can read it now! Here's a question to consider: What is gumbo and what is its connection to Shorty's music?

Second Grade:

Please see the attached document below. I made another call number matching activity using more of your names. I hope you are having fun looking for your name. If you haven't seen it yet, have no fear, I did one for everyone in both classes.

Third Grade:

Please go to your Technology Classroom in Google and you'll find a book vocabulary activity I shared with you. I know, it's a library-related activity, but I figured it would be better not to create yet another classroom for you! 😊

Staying on the lines of library and the Dewey Decimal System, I have two videos for your review. One is a good review and worth taking a look at. The other will have you tapping your feet and rapping along!

Don't forget to practice your keyboarding skills! The Keyboarding without Tears link is on the 'Caught in the Web' page!

Fourth Grade:

Did you know that your commercials/infomercials are now available for public viewing? Yes they are! Go to the 'Caught in the Web' site and click on 'Essex Technology', then 'EES Student Spotlight 2019-2020'. Show your parents; they'll get a kick out of them.

Speaking of the US Region Project, have you noticed that I have graded your notes? Open up the note taking document and read my comments. You continue to strengthen your note taking skills! Nice work!

Fourth & Fifth Grade:

For this week, I've got a video for you to review on primary vs. secondary sources. Try your hand at the 'Test your knowledge' section at the end. Let me know how you do. (hardys@mersd.org)

Grades 3-5: YOU'RE INVITED!

To what?, you may ask. You're invited to join the 'What Will I Read Next?' Book Club! Tell everyone in grades 3-5 what you've been reading. I created a new classroom for this. Open up your Google Classroom account and click on the + sign. The code for the class is cyusp5o.

Call Number Matching Practice #3

Name _____ Date _____ HR _____

Match the book and author on the left with its call number on the right.
Don't forget: biography call numbers stand for the subject of the biography, not the author!
